Walter Rutt, the sturdy German, sprang a big surprise in the initial heat of the night session when he displayed the form that made him famous here a few years ago. He rode an exceptionally fine and heady heat and beat his opponents home in sensational style. Goulet finished second, McNamara was third and Van Kempen fourth.

Verri came along and added to the surprises by leading home the field in the second. He took the lead soon after the start and led the remainder of the way to win rather easily. Coburn fin-Goullet showed that he still possesses some of his former great speed in the third heat. He rode in fourth place behind a fast pace until a lap and a half from the finish. Then he began to sprint and went around his field to win in sensational style by half a length. Bello was second and McNamara third. The fourth event wasn't very stirring. Kaiser took the lead half a mile from home and led the remainder of the way. His opponents made no keen effort to overhaul him. Madden took second points, Coburn was third and Verri fourth.

Goullet came out in the fifth and Mutt was second and Van Kempen third. Madden was an easy winner of the sixth. He finished two lengths in front of Coburn, with De Ruyter third and Thomas fourth.

MoNamara came back and took the seventh, with Rutt second, Goullet third and Van Kempen fourth. Madden added some more points to his string in the eighth by heading home the field in a thrilling finish by a length. De Ruyter was second and Coburn third. MoNamara finished first in the ninth heat, but was disqualified for foul riding. With him out the first point went to Van Kempen. Rutt was awarded second makee. Goullet third and Coburn third. The air resounded with hoots and deers for five minutes after the final sprint. They came because of Madden's foul riding. He interfered with Coburn several times during the last three laps, and then went on and finished first by two lengths. Despite his paipable foul the refere, took no action and his victory was allowed to stand. De Ruyter finished second, Coburn third and Thomas fourth.

During the morning and afternoon acasions there was plenty of fast riding. The official sprints were spirited, and between the races there were several attempts to steal a lap. Half a dozen times a team gained a quarter of a lap, but the other contestants were on the alert and in good enough condition to everhaui the would-be stealers.

A MATTER OF OPINION.

Not long ago we made the assertion that the East had no end this season who ranked among the first half dozen in the country. For this we have been taken to task by two of the best football writers in the game, William B. Hanna and Herbert Reed.

Hanna jumps to the defence of Parr of the Navy. He says: "I don't know how good the Western ends, as a whole, are, having seen only two this fall—Anderson and Kiley of Notre Dame. But they've all got to show me before I shall be convinced that any of them are the equal of the aforementioned midelylogman.

"Kiley caught the forward pass wonderfully well, but as a line player, "Kiley caught the forward pass wonderfully well, but as a line player, keen and alert and sure and sharp on his tackles, I don't think he is Parr's equal by a good deal. I saw Parr against Princeton, Penn State and the Army, and he was consistently efficient to a high degree in all of these games. At taking out an opposing tackle he was the best I saw, the best end on offense and on defence so proficient that he did more to stop Penn State's advance than any other one man on his side. A great end, this chap, without being particularly showy about it."

Parr should be proud if he reads that. It's high praise, coming from

But there is praise for another Eastern end. Reed writes in the Evening Post: "I find the astonishing statement that the East had no end who could rank anywhere in the first half dozen, yet there was no keener follower of the ball than Macomber of Harvard. His recovery of the onside attempts at goal from the field were alone enough to make him stand out. He was at all times a good, all around end, but his downfield work in the situations mentioned was uncanny, and but for the ground rule at Harvard, necessitated by the encroachment of the ropes on the playing field, he would have had a touchdown against Yale that would have been a case of sheer individual tri-

Macomber should be proud if he reads that. It's high praise, coming from

But we told our story, and it's a good story, and we are going to stick to it. We saw Parr and we saw Macomber, and there isn't a doubt in the world that they are both fine ends, but we still doubt that either of them could win a place on a football eleven if they were in competition with Rob erts of Centre, Swanson of Nebraska, Crisier of Chicago, Kiley of Notre Dame or Muller and Stevens of California. As a matter of fact, we thought that Sturm of Yale was about the best end we saw in the East this year.

NEBRASKA.

The University of Nebraska may well be proud of its football record. In twelve years of play in the Missouri Valley Conference the Cornhuskers have won the championship nine times. Out of thirty-one conference games played they won twenty-seven and tied one. In the season just passed Nebraska won seven games and lost one. During the seasons of 1913, 1914 and 1915 the eleven was undefeated. In the last fifteen years Nebraska has won ninety-one games, lost twenty-four and made 2.641 points to its opponents 699. Nine that he is in fine fettle and capable of 1/ding several more days.

Buysse and VanHevel and DeRuyter and VanKempen also are in tip top shape and promise to furnish keen contention throughout the race. Brocco is the disappointment of the race. He is nothing compared to the rider he was nothing compared to the rider he was here last year and in 1920. He is haveing all he can do to keep from being lapped. That he is in fourth place is due to the great riding of his partner, Alf Goullet. Of the 186 scored by the team Brocco tailled only 12. Goullet, 174 makes him the largest individual point getter of the race.

It is impossible to see all football players in action before trying to pick an all star team, but if you can find a man with brains, heart, weight, speed and football instinct you know there can't be many any better.

On the Friday previous Capt. Dave Tupper went out with a party of thirteen and they went out with a party of thirteen and they rought in no less than 186 cod. Three men, the Captain, mate and George Styles, had a sixty-nine between them. These fish ran from six to thirty-sight pounds each and the percentage of bigger tish was quitte large.

Every trip nets large catches of cod, and they seem to thrive on the scollop batt that is now taking the place of the skimmers. The scallops are firmer and remain on the hooks better. As a consequence the bait is not destroyed by the bergalls to the same extent as the skimmer bait.

Parke H. Davis Reviews Great Football Plays of Year in To-morrow's New York Herald

THE NEW YORK HERALD will publish exclusively to-morrow Parke H. Davis's statistical review of the great plays in football th United States in 1921.

At the close of each season the various football teams throughout the country file with Mr. Davis the complete statistics of their games. These statistics, when assembled and classified, disclose which players throughout the United States have performed the greatest feats in all details of play. From this data Mr. Davis annually has prepared a review, which has regularly appeared in THE NEW YORK HERALD, and whose data subsequently has been incorporated in the Football Guide. Mr. Davis's narrative for 1921 is extraordinary. In it the small college player who complains that he is overlooked in the election of All American teams comes into his own, for Mr. Davis parallels his exploits beside those of the famous player from the big team, and to the instances his performances lead.

Who scored the most points of all the players in the United States? Although the sports writers have named a number of players for this leadership, they have not mentioned the right man. Mr. Davis will tell you.

Who has kicked the longest and most goals from the field? The name of this inconspicuous player has not yet appeared in the news items of the East.

Who made the longest run on all the nation's football fields this fall?

Who threw the longest forward pass? Who made the longest run from scrimmage? Who with an intercepted pass? Who with a complete pass? Who with a caught punt? Who with a fumble and who with a blocked kick? Who scored the most touchdown? Who the most goals after touchdown?

By actual figures who is the longest punting fullback in the United States?

All of these questions and a score of others will be answered in Mr. Davis's view next Sunday. What is more, the pictures of these great players will eview next Sunday. What is more, the pictures of these great players will appear as illustrations. In the midst of the post season's jumble of All Eastern, All Western and All American teams, selected by guess work, refresh yourself by ascertaining who is who in Mr. Davis's review, which is based upon the figures of actual performances. It is entertaining, instructive and unique.

NEW ORLEANS MUD NO BAR TO INCOG

Seven-Year-Old Mare Easily Wins St. Bernard Purse at Jefferson Park.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 9 .- Incog, T. E. Crist's seven-year-old mare, carried her game speed through the worst going of the season to account for the Si nary card at Jefferson Park to-day. To add to the discomfort of the lean crowd add to the discomfort of the lean crowd seven favorites fell during the rainy. cold afternoon.

Incog supplied all her own pace. She disposed of the heavily backed Tickilsh during the primary half of the running, and after saving much ground entered the stretch, eventually drew out to win by five lengths from Fickilsh, who had an equal advantage over Trust Official. Sikhim, the only other starter, finished a distant last. The six furlongs was run in 1:17 4-5.

Sister Flo scored the easiest victory
